

ANTÓNIO FERNANDO CORREIA DE CAMPOS

Degree in Law at the University of Coimbra, higher public health studies at the the former École Nationale de la Santé Publique de Rennes, known nowadays as École des hautes études en santé publique France, Master of Public Health by the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, USA. Full Professor of Health Economics at the National School of Public Health, the New University of Lisbon. WHO, European Union and UNDP consultant in several missions, in Brazil, Angola, Mozambique, Macau (China), Argentina, Azerbaijan, Kyrgyzstan, Romania, Russian Federation, Ukraine, Estonia, Georgia and Belarus. Senior Health Care Management Specialist of the World Bank, Washington DC working in the countries of the Former Soviet Union. Other former appointments: Chairman of the White Paper Commission on Social Security Reform, in Portugal, President of the National Institute of Administration President of the Scientific Council of the European Institute of Public Administration, Maastricht. Secretary of State for Health, Member of the Portuguese Parliament, Minister of Health and Member of the European Parliament. President of STOA (EP), several national and foreign honorary distinctions. Recently awarded with The Woodrow Wilson Award, by the Johns Hopkins University Alumni Association. Since 2016, President of the Economic and Social Council.

Author of 9 books and co-editor of six others. Also author of more than one hundred articles for national and international journals in the areas of health care administration, public administration, health policy and health economics.